HOME AND FARM.

—Clean tea or coffee cups with scouring brick. It makes them look as good as new.—Exchange.
—A correspondent of the Breeder's Gazette thinks it unwise to feed ensilage to breeding cattle.

—It is well to remember that the turkey must have wide range. Confinement is death to him. He will show his gratitude, if permitted to forage, by making most of his living.—Prarie Farmer.
—Soda Cake: Two cups of butter, four of sugar, one of sour cream, one-half cup of sweet milk, two teaspoonsful of soda, one of cream-of-tartar, flavor with nutmeg or vanilla.—The Caterer.

—If you want to get the good-will of your hens, says the Prarie Farmer, feed them dry, hot corn at night. Heat the corn in an iron pan or kettle in the oven, and stir occasionally. No matter if it gets a little charred. It won't do any harm to give warm water, either.

—Stuffed Potatoes: Mince some cold meat very fine and season it to taste. Choose large potatoes of one size and peel and core them, taking care not to core them through. Fill them with the minced meat and put them in a dish to bake, with a cupful of water and a little butter or nice beef dripping. If the potatoes are large they will require an hour to bake; if small, half that time will be sufficient.—Boston Globe.

Mr. J. H. Gregory makes the statement that the corn plant has the power of getting its nitrogen from the air. We have, therefore, but to supply potash and phosphate to the soil. For three years the experiment has been tried upon the poor-soil plots of the farm grounds. No matter how large the quantity of potash and phosphoric acid used, we can not get a good crop without nitrogen.—Rural New Yorker.

—More than half of the diseases so prevalent among farm horses are due to improper attention to the common laws of sanitation, and farmers would save many times the expense of a properly constructed stable were they to try the experiment. The animals that are so closely connected with the successful working of the farm assuredly deserve better care and attention than is usually given them. The humane man will therefore see that they have light, roomy, well-ventilated stables, where disease will be far less likely to enter.—T. Telegraph.

SPRING COSTUMES.

A Perpetuation of the Styles Prevalent During the Winter Season.

New costumes for spring and summer retain the general effect of those now worn, with basque, bouffant skirt and combinations of two materials. The principal changes are in the drapery, and in an attempt to lengthen short skirts, making those of street dresses barely escape the ground, while those for the house touch the floor. The plaits around the back of skirts, instead of being abandoned, are increased in number from three to six, the added ones being very short, and set in only a few inches below the belt, so that they may take place of the warm flannel cushion, though this cushion is still used by many French models.

The foundation skirt remains about two yards and a quarter in width. The lower skirt of the dress material is very full and straight, being almost a regular Mother Hubbard skirt, and is visible to a greater height below or between the draperies than in winter dresses. Sometimes this skirt is gathered all around at the top, and sewed to the foundation skirt, but in most cases it is partly plain and partly gathered, or else plaited in wide, loose-looking plaits in the sides or behind, or wherever it is not covered by drapery. The new draperies are arranged very long in the front skirt, leaving both sides of the lower skirt uncovered from the belt down. The front drapery drops in a point toward the right side, being made very wide and full of plaiting into the belt; it is then caught up in the left side, and falls in a plait to the foot on the right, leaving its right side quite straight. This plait, it will be seen, exposes both sides of the lower skirt, which may be in lengthwise plaits on both sides, or it may have a deep fall of lace, or else for light summer fabrics there may be many narrow ruffles of silk or of lace, with a band of velvet ribbon heading each. The back drapery is confined to a very narrow space when plaited or gathered to the belt, but it is very full, and may hang straight to the foot, or else be opened in the middle and drop in two long narrow points that again disclose the full lower skirt. Flounces all around the skirt are seldom seen, even as a finish to the foot, but are used in very narrow widths to cover the sides or perhaps the front of a skirt, while the full lower skirt, when made of wide lace or embroidery or any one of the bordered or bayadere striped fabrics, is in point of fact, merely one deep flounce, giving the effect of a full round skirt.

Basques remain short with high darts, giving the appearance of a long slender waist, but those of silk or velvet have fuller trimmings in front that the flatter garments of winter dresses. The full plastron or vest is made of soft silk gathered or plaited, and there are tapering velvet revers on each side of this vest.

The laced front is a feature of new basques, and is becoming to all figures. Some plain wool dresses are laced from the throat down, but it is more usual to make the old-time fan waist becoming to slight figures. Very high dog collars of velvet, cut all in one piece and stiffly lined with buckram, are on dresses of this fabric, and may be fastened on the left side in a point, or with a bow of ribbon; if made of velvet, they are required to fasten them.—Harper's Bazar.

ALL COMERS.

Summer Necessities in every kind of Fancy and Staple Dry Goods, Clothing, Etc., At figures that discount all Bankrupt and shelf-worn stocks and so-called cheap store prices and all this in New, Fresh, Clean and Desirable Goods.

We take this method of extending our sincere thanks to our many friends and customers, for the liberal patronage bestowed upon us for the past 26 years. We have, since our establishment in this city in 1860, tried our utmost to gain the confidence of the people, by giving them

Good, Honest, Serviceable Goods for LESS MONEY than they could be bought elsewhere, and by making plain and true statements and representations in offering these goods.

It needs no explanation from us to show how our goods and prices have been appreciated. Our business has continually improved; our customers have grown more, year by year, consequently we have been forced to carry a

LARGER STOCK from time to time, until we now carry the largest and best selected stock of Dry Goods, Clothing, Boots, Shoes, Hats, Furnishing Goods, TRUNKS AND VALISES —in Hopkinsville. Our two Store Rooms,

NOS. 13 AND 15 SOUTH MAIN STREET, are packed with the above mentioned goods. We carry no shoddy or trashy goods, but sell you good, durable goods, at same prices that you pay for trashy goods. We have often been asked, "Why don't you handle common goods?" Our answer is invariably that we find it pays to handle nothing but first-class goods, and when people want good goods they come to us, and if they try them once they never fail to try them again; while on the other hand should we sell a customer an inferior article we would not be very apt to see him again. It is our aim to gain customers and retain them. Our calculation is to sell often at a small margin, which is more profitable than selling a customer once at large margin and not selling him again.

We offer this month, (June) only,
GREAT BARGAINS,
our entire stock at such Low Prices that you will be astonished.

We will not endeavor to quote prices for our competitors to copy after, but ask you to call at our Mammoth Store Rooms,
Where you can see the goods, examine them closely and see for yourself that they are as we say
GREAT BARGAINS.

We will not offer you as an inducement, a few Calicoes, Domestic, Lawns, &c., at cost, but every article in our house will go far below its value. We have determined to maintain our reputation for
The Original and Only
"LEADERS OF LOW PRICES"

Which we established more than 25 years ago. Our Stock comprises every thing in the way of

DRY GOODS, DRESS GOODS,

Clothing, Men's wear of every description. We do not ask you to buy a Single Dollar worth of Goods from us until you price elsewhere, then we feel confident, you will be very much astonished at our extreme Low Prices. Good honest goods and fair dealing, has placed us in the lead, and we intend to continue the gait we have been going for so many years and allow none to pass us. Remember we have been offering you nothing unless we can recommend it. A child of 5 years can trade with us with as much confidence as a grown person, and will be treated just the same. Notwithstanding, we have reduced the prices considerably in our

WEATHER SIGNS.

Prophetic Wisdom Which Can Be Found in Birds and Nature.

The man who is out of doors at sunrise can form a pretty accurate opinion of what the day may be. If just before sunrise the sky—especially in the west—is suffused with red, rain generally follows in the course of the day. In winter often snow. If, however, it be frosty weather, the downfall is sometimes delayed. On the other hand, if the sky be a dull gray, and the sun rises clear, gradually dispersing the vapors, it will be fine. If he retires behind the clouds, and there are reddish streaks about it, it will rain. Should the sun, later in the day, shine through a gray, watery haze, it will probably be a rainy night.

The sunset is very unreliable. Often a beautiful sunset will be followed by a bad day. After a rainy day, suddenly at sunset, in the far west, will appear a magnificent streak of crimson (not copper-color) this generally foretells a fine day. A tinted halo round the sun at setting occurs in long-continued rainy weather. A halo round the moon, especially if some distance from it, is a sure indication of downfall at hand.

Rainbows are unreliable, except they occur in the morning, when rain may be expected. Sun-dogs and fragments of prismatic colors during the day show continued unsettled weather. A dazzling metallic luster on foliage during a cloudless day in summer precludes a change.

Haze piled-up masses of white cloud in a blue sky during winter indicate snow or hail. If small, dark clouds float below the upper ones, moving faster than they, rain will follow, as it will, if, in the morning, pale brown, smoke-like clouds are floating about. Red-tinged clouds, high up at evening, are followed by wind, occasionally by rain.

Mists at evening over low-lying ground or near a river, precede fine and warm days. If a mist in the morning clears off as the sun gets higher, it will be fine; but if it settles down again after lifting a little, rain is at hand. No dew in the morning is mostly followed by rain, and a heavy dew in the evening by a fine day. Rain follows two or three consecutive hoar frosts. A shower of hail in the day time is usually followed by frost at night. If, after rain, drops of water still hang on the branches and twigs, and to window frames, the rain will return, but if it settles at hand, the work dries, fine weather is at hand.

Stones turn damp before wet; at the same time it must be observed that the fact of their doing so does not invariably indicate rain, for they will do so occasionally before a shower. Smoke descending heavily to the ground is the sign of very doubtful weather.

Objects at great distances, which are generally indistinctly seen, or even not seen at all, sometimes loom out clear and distinct. When this happens, bad weather or change of wind comes. A well-known instance of this is the Isle of Wight, as seen from Southsea. If the opposite shore is clearly seen, there is rain ahead. If, at night, after being blown out and exposed to the outer air, the wick of a candle continues to smolder a long time, the next day will be fine. Green-colored sky betokens unsettled bad weather, often long continued.

If, on a fine day, the dust suddenly rises in a revolving, spiral column, rain is near.

The howling of the wind indicates, in most houses, but not invariably, that a storm is near. In some houses, owing to their construction, the wind always moans. Whenever the wind is at the time of the vernal equinox (March 21 and thereafter), that will be the prevailing wind throughout the rest of the year.

If the stars appear unusually numerous, and the "milky way" very clearly defined, with the surrounding sky dark, or if there be a misty appearance over the stars, rain is coming; while if there be stars and stars, and those very bright and sparkling, in a pale, steely sky, it will be fine.

Swine, before rain, are unusually noisy and restless. Swallows in fine weather fly high, and at the approach of rain close to the ground; but the latter does not hold if the day is cold, in which case they hawk very low.

Common sparrows washing vigorously in a puddle on the road, or at the edge of running water, is a sure sign of rain. A baker, who kept a parrot in the dry atmosphere of the bake-offices, noticed that a few hours before rain the bird took an imaginary bath, flapping its wings, and preening its feathers.—Cassell's Family Magazine.

LONGFELLOW'S YOUTH.
The Discouragements Which the Young Foot Had to Overcome.
Hawthorne once said in speaking of his own early life and the days at Bowdoin College, where he and Longfellow were in the same class, that no two young men could have been more unlike. Longfellow, he explained, was a tremendous student, and always carefully carried out his appearance, no student at all and entirely incapable at that period of appreciating Longfellow. Later in life a warm friendship grew up between them, and I find a little note from Longfellow in which he says he has had a sad letter from Hawthorne, and adds: "I wish we could have a little dinner for him, of two sad authors and two jolly publishers, nobody else!"

MISCELLANEOUS.

—The Alta California's advice on the Chinese question: "Go slow and drive in the middle of the road."
—John Pierce, a Palatka, Wis., blacksmith, and three helpers the other day shod 135 horses "all around." That means that the four men handled 540 feet and shod them.—N. Y. Sun.

—The largest barn in the world is probably that of the Union Cattle Company, of Cheyenne, near Omaha. It covers five acres, cost $235,000 and accommodates 3,750 head of cattle.

—A California Chinaman recently ran away with another Chinaman's wife, and, to throw the pursuers off the trail, took her aboard a steamboat rolled up in a lot of blankets, carrying her on his shoulder.

—The petrified skeleton of a whale over thirty feet long has been discovered by an officer of the Coast Survey on a range of mountains in Monterey County, Cal., over thirty-three hundred feet above the sea level.

—An artificial sponge made of cotton, rendered absorbent and treated with antiseptics, has been invented in England. A piece of the size of a walnut has absorbed water until it reached the size of a coconut. It is so cheap that it need be used but once.

—French proof-readers in the Government office are paid $9.50 per day; machine men, $1.75 to $2.25 per day; bookbinders and pressmen, $1.00 to $1.25 per day, and type-founders, $5.25 per week; laborers, $16.25 per month.—N. Y. Mail.

—A young man of Leadville, enamored of a beautiful married woman of the same town, made arrangements to elope with her. Each thought the other rich. The inability or unwillingness of each to buy the railroad tickets to San Francisco caused a postponement of their plans, and another home is not broken up.—Denver Tribune.

—A learned Berlin professor has given to the world the information of what makes a "merry twinkle." It is caused by a peculiar abraded-like movement of the lids, the orbicularis palpebrum and the parts around the nose. The new reading of "Twinkle, little star," would then be: "Abbril-like movement of the lids, the orbicularis palpebrum and the parts around the nose, diminutive satellite."—Rochester Post-Express.

—Overheard in a street car: First lady: "Why, you know, dear, my husband is a very good fellow for anything. Why, do you know, when he goes out, he really don't remember where he is going. Second lady:—Well, all men are alike. They keep on talking and half the time they forget where they are going. First lady (to conductor):—Stop at College street, please. Conductor:—Two blocks back, madam.—New Haven News.

—If the populous and fertile region known as Wyoming County, N. Y., is not shortly transferred into a howling wilderness it will not be the fault of Mr. Samuel Wolcott, an enterprising citizen of Arcade, who proposes to start a skunk ranch. The animals will be raised on an extensive scale for their hides, which bring a high price in the market. Mr. Wolcott has already obtained one hundred brothers, and the business is expected to prove very remunerative. A skunkery has at least this advantage over a chicken farm, that no one will, in all probability, attempt to steal the skunks from their perches at night.—Buffalo Express.

—It is not surprising that Mrs. Wilhelm of Louisville, Ky., should have been disgusted with her learned that her daughter Ellen had eloped with a newspaper man; but she should not have permitted herself to be so far overcome with grief as to light a fire in the kitchen, and then lie down upon it. Such a proceeding could not have removed the stain from the honor of the Brown family, even if Mrs. B. had succeeded in roasting herself. But, fortunately, before she was quite done, a neighbor came in and took her off the stove. At latest accounts her prospects of recovery were fair to middling.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

—Mr. Alford married during the second year of the late war. He only had $4.80 to start out with, and this was the way he got it: His father was a mechanic and was gone all the week at his work, when he came home every Saturday night he gave each of his children a five-cent piece. James had a disposition to save. He got a piece of timber and bored a hole in it to fit the half-dimes and every one of his father gave him to put in this unique savings bank. He kept this plan up until he married. Upon investigation he found he had saved $4.80. With this capital the young farmer began the battle of life. To-day he is worth over $10,000.—Harrods (Ga.) Sun.

A CURIOUS BANK.

The Treasure Trove Found by a Pennsylvanian.

Some years ago, an old woodman bridge spanned the Schuylkill river at the foot of Penn street, Reading, Pa. In the course of time a more substantial structure was deemed necessary, and the timbers of the old bridge were carefully taken apart, and reserved for use in repairing and rebuilding the smaller county bridges. While preparing some of this old timber for its new use, a few days ago, it became necessary to saw off several feet from a heavy piece, which was to be used as a girder in a small bridge under contemplation. When the end portion dropped to the ground, the workman was astonished to hear a jingling sound as of gold and silver coin. A summons of such good omen insured a speedy investigation, which resulted in finding eagles, half eagles, silver dollars, halves and quarters mixed together in careless confusion. The source of supply was found in a section about eighteen inches in length and five inches deep, which had been hollowed out of the log with auger and chisel. An inch-thick cover had been fitted over the opening so cleverly and sealed with so much care that detection, other than accidental, was hardly possible. The treasure had been confined in a home-knit woolen stocking, and as the saw cut off the toe, a part of the contents was discharged.

The value of the deposit, though reported to be considerable, was not made public. The money was probably hidden away a number of years ago, as specimens of three, five, ten, twenty-five and fifty cent scrip, nicely folded up in a piece of writing paper, were among the contents. Not a line indicated the ownership. The question of possession is consequently divided as to whether it should go to the workman who discovered it, the owner of the timber, or the county. The finder probably inclines to the first suggestion.—Scientific American.

Objections Answered.

There are three objections being raised by the opponents of the H. & C. R. R. proposition, to be voted upon this week. The first is that there is no guaranty of low freight rates from a responsible source. The second, that the magisterial district should vote with the city upon the proposition. The third is the old cry against "bonded indebtedness," which is raised by some of our citizens whenever public schools, railroads or anything else are to be paid for.

The first of these objections—for they can hardly be called arguments, was answered by a letter in Friday's issue from Gen. Echols, in which he says the C. O. & S. W. will be glad to make a contract by which they will have an inlet to the business done at this point and that the terms agreed upon will be favorable to Hopkinsville, whose trade that road desires to compete for. It is silly to talk of an absolute guaranty. There can be no certain guaranty in any business venture. Sensible men know that competition is the life of trade and observation teaches that there can be no just discrimination where there are competing lines of railway. Hopkinsville with 750 votes in the stock of the H. & C. R. R., can have perhaps a controlling voice in the management of the enterprise and while this is the case there can be no great risks to take by aiding the road.
Those who wish to be supinely upon their backs waiting for something to turn up that more nearly accords with their ideas should remember that procrastination is what has already made vacant store houses on some of our principal streets. It cannot be denied that trade is being diverted from its natural channels to other markets, simply because we cannot secure reasonable rates to ship our freight into and out of the city.
Shall we be lethargic while our city is being encircled by a railroad that is doing us the greatest injury and which it is now claimed has recently made arrangements to resume work in its construction? We think not and we believe the people realize that now is the time to act. As to the second objection: It must be borne in mind that there is no law to authorize the district to vote to aid any competing railway connection to Hopkinsville and that it will be two years before such a law could be passed. The law under which this proposition is made is a special act authorizing a vote in the city alone.
If there is any other act under which district aid might be secured it is a law applicable to some other company not in existence and which would not authorize aid to be extended to secure the competing line we so much need. So this objection is utterly futile. At the same time it is highly probably that the district outside of the city would vote against any such proposition, which opposition added to negative votes in the city would defeat any measure looking to relief.

The people of Hopkinsville should aid the road. They have their money invested here, they principally suffer from exorbitant freight charges and they are interested in securing such relief as will enable them to successfully compete for the trade that should naturally come to us. And in this they cannot afford to acknowledge their inability to meet the issue squarely, by adopting a measure that would put the matter into the hands of the county court two years hence, which in all probability would decline to allow a vote to be taken in the district, since not one member of the court is a resident of that part of the district outside of the city.

In regard to the additional taxation, there is no need to be alarmed.
The bonds could be easily floated at 4 per cent, and a levy of 30 cents on the $100 would pay the interest and leave $1,500 a year to go into a sinking fund to redeem the bonds at maturity. The rate of city taxation is now $1.65, 15 cents of which is to pay the interest on the school bonds. Over half of these have been called in and in two years all of them will be paid off, so that the taxes will be lessened 15 cents by 1888. After one levy the rate would not be more than $1.80 and might be even lower, as the property will naturally enhance in value as soon as the road is built. On the other hand the benefits to be derived will be ten times as great to each citizen as the increase of his taxes. In coal alone he will save double as much as he will pay for the road.

We cannot see how any live, progressive citizen should vote against the proposition. We cannot see why even the most cautious financier should want a better thing. We pay nothing until we get the road and then have a controlling voice in making its contracts, as the estimated cost of the C. O. & S. W. branch does not reach $150,000, while the stock owned by the city is to be preferred stock to the amount of $75,000.

Good Results in Every Case.

D. A. Bradford, wholesale paper dealer of Chattanooga, Tenn., writes that he was seriously afflicted with a severe cold that settled on his lungs; had tried many remedies without benefit. Being induced to try Dr.
King's New Discovery for Consumption, did so and was entirely cured by the use of a few bottles. Since which time he has used it in his family for all Coughs and Colds with best results. This is the experience of thousands whose lives have been saved by this wonderful Discovery.

CROFTON, KY.

June 13th, 1886.

Prof. R. H. Ingram and Miss Mary Galloway's school closed Friday.

The examination lasted two days.
Many of the students have returned home. When it came time for teachers to say farewell to their pupils tears fell from every eye like the gentle summer rain, for the scholars all loved their teachers and they too loved their scholars. We hope to see them all united again in the fall session.

Miss Mollie Dulin, of Morton's Gap, spent Thursday night here with her uncle W. M. West.

The picnic at Consolation yesterday, was a grand social gathering with plenty to eat for even more than were there, and the Croftonians that attended will ever remember many of those people who were kind enough to furnish them plenty for the inner man.

Mr. and Mrs. Jessie Cannon, of your city, spent to-day here with Mrs. Cannon's father, G. R. Hancock.

We were informed the other day by a gentleman whose veracity is unquestionable that there saw a lizard choking a black snake to death. The snake was about four feet in length

Mrs. Jas. Stewart, of Pembroke, last week.

Miss Mary Galloway left for Nash-short time but made many friends.

In our columns will be found an advertisement of the far famed White Sulphur Springs of West Virginia.
These springs are situated on the C.
& O. railroad and are within easy reach of Hopkinsville and all surrounding points. The situation of these springs is quite elevated, which renders the air pure and exhilarating. The curative powers of the waters are wonderful, as thousands of visitors who have been benefited will testify. The fashionable people from both north and south spend a greater portion of the summer at these springs, where health is regained, friends are met, good music is heard discoursed by a most excellent band and where the oppressive summer's heat is not felt. Those who wish to place their time and money where the greatest benefit will be derived, will surely go to White Sulphur.

Louisville Tobacco Market.

[By Glover & Durrell.]

The sales on our market for the week just closed amount to 2,472 bbls.
There has been no change in prices.
Tobacco generally is appearing in a little better condition. The best information that we can get is that the crop is about one-half set, taking the state at large. There will probably be no change in the market until it is fully developed what the size of the planting will be. Sales on our market since Jan. 1, amount to 61,780 bbls.
Our market now shows a stock of 21-480 bbls, which includes both Burley and dark tobaccos, sold and unsold.
The following quotations fairly represent our market for new dark tobacco.

KELLY'S KY.

JUNE 13th, 1886.

Congratulations are in order. Mr.
Samuel Walker and wife are the proud parents of a son, born June 3.

Mr. J. F. Boyd was elected trustee in school district 59, to take the place of James Anderson, the outgoing trustee. Peter Rogers, of Hopkinsville, is an applicant for the school in the above district.

The speaking announced for the night of the 5th inst., at Hall's school house nearly proved a flash, as the expected speakers did not come. Mr.
J. F. Dixon, democratic candidate for sheriff, was present but declined to say anything in the absence of his opponent. At the request of friends Mr. T. C. Tinsley favored the crowd with a speech of one hour or more and then we speedily went home.

Mr. Isaac N. Bilbro, living half a mile east of Kelly's Station, had the misfortune to lose his house by fire on yesterday afternoon, saving nothing but some bedding and a sewing machine. Mr. Bilbro has the sympathy of all his friends in his unfortunate situation. WEAVER.
